

Power Move 3: Market Reconnaissance

The Market Intelligence Dashboard

Market intelligence should not be a dense 50-page report you create once a year and stick in a drawer. It should be a lightweight, living system that provides a constant pulse on your terrain. You can build a simple dashboard—a one-page document or a digital note—to track the most vital signals.

At regular intervals (monthly or quarterly), update these seven fields:

TOP 3 DESIRED OUTCOMES

What are buyers asking for most right now, in their own words? (e.g., "I just want my team to be autonomous.")

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

TOP 3 OBJECTIONS

What are they protecting when they hesitate? (e.g., "We can't afford a long implementation time.")

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

TOP 3 TRUST BREAKERS

What specific things create hesitation in your sales process? (e.g., "Lack of clear pricing on the website.")

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

TOP 3 CONFIDENCE CUES

What proof do they need to see to feel trust is reasonable? (e.g., "Case studies from similar industries.")

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

TOP 3 MARKET ALTERNATIVES

What are competitors promising right now? (e.g., "AI-driven solutions.")

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

TOP 3 CATEGORY CLICHÉS

What overused words must you avoid? (e.g., "Synergy," "Disruptive," "Next-gen.")

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

ONE OPPORTUNITY GAP

What is the one thing buyers want that is not being served well? (e.g., "Strategic guidance, not just execution.")

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____